

CONSULTAS

Consultas Financial Services Limited - Cookie Policy (updated May 2020)

What are cookies?

Cookies are small pieces of data compiled of information, which is sent to your device when you visit a website/application

How does Consultas Financial Services Limited use cookies?

There are multiple types of cookies used by websites to collect personal information. On the 1st July 2011, the EU Cookie Law was imported to Ireland. We are complying with EU legislation by displaying a website cookie notice before any information is collected.

Strictly Necessary Cookies

Consultas Financial Services Limited uses Strictly Necessary Cookies which are essential to enable you to browse our website and use the features.

Performance Cookies

These cookies collect information about how you use our website – for instance, the different pages viewed. Consultas Financial Services Limited only collects this information to analyse website performance.

Third Party Users

Consultas Financial Services uses Google Analytics to help gather information to provide us with more accurate website analytics.

These performance cookies are to generate the following information for private use only:

1. Number of page views.
2. Number of website sessions in a specific time period.
3. Location of website users.
4. Average time spent on a webpage.

For all enquiries relating to how we handle your information, please contact us via email: info@consultas.ie or phone (01) 554 3904.